

Strategic Land Acquisitions by GHL India Ventures – High-Value Assets with Strong Appreciation Potential

1. Narikudi, Madurai – Renewable Energy Development Opportunity

The property, located in Narikudi, approximately 50 kilometres from Madurai, Tamil Nadu, spans about 145 acres of contiguous land — making it ideal for large-scale renewable energy development.

A proposal has been initiated to establish a solar power plant on this land, leveraging the region's abundant sunlight, favourable terrain, and existing infrastructure. Importantly, the site is situated close to a major power substation, making it highly suitable for solar power generation and seamless grid connectivity.

The prospective buyer, based in Dubai, has shown strong interest in developing this project, recognising the region's growing prominence as a renewable energy hub. The nearby SEI Aadhavan Power Plant and SEI Kathiravan Power Plant, both operated by the Greenko Group, further reinforce the area's renewable ecosystem.

The property was acquired at ₹22.5 crores, representing a 40% discount on the current market value. After initial development and site preparation, the total investment is projected at ₹25 crores.

With its strategic location, ample land area, and proximity to the power substation and existing solar infrastructure, the asset stands as a well-chosen investment with excellent potential for high-value appreciation.

2. Karadivavi, Coimbatore – Industrial and Strategic Development Asset

Located in Karadivavi, around 35 kilometres from Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu, this 30-acre land parcel offers prime potential for industrial and infrastructure expansion.

The property lies near the Defence Corridor and in proximity to the Sullur Airbase, adding significant strategic and commercial value. The surrounding area is rapidly evolving into a major industrial and logistics hub, supported by growing defence and manufacturing investments.

The acquisition was made at ₹45 crores, reflecting a 40% discount on prevailing market rates. Post-development and value enhancement, the property is expected to achieve a fair market value of approximately ₹75 crores.

Given its location advantage, connectivity, and industrial potential, this acquisition demonstrates strong investment foresight and offers excellent prospects for capital appreciation and diversified project development.

Summary:

The acquisitions at Narikudi (Madurai) and Karadivavi (Coimbatore) were made by GHL India Ventures at approximately 40% below market value. Both properties reflect strategic selection, inherent growth potential, and synergy with GHL's core investment focus in renewable energy and industrial expansion sectors.
